

Presentation: Perfecting Your 21st Century Leadership Skills

Linda Smedley is a graduate of the University of Southern California with a major in Educational Psychology. She is currently lead faculty of the Pupil Personnel Services-School of Psychology Dept. for National University in Los Angeles, CA. She has over 30 years of experience working in public schools as an instructor, counselor, school psychologist and director of student services.

ABSTRACT

In the United States conditions for children and challenges faced by public school education require that school psychologists use their skills as leaders to assume a greater role in improving educational opportunities for children. As highly trained experts in prevention, intervention, and evaluation, it is the school psychologist's responsibility to become involved in programs, which have a positive impact to improve educational opportunities.